REPUBLICAN OFFICIALS ON BOARD.

Just before the boat started the glee club belonging to the Colored League of the XIth Assembly District appeared and gave some stirring campaign songs in a spirited manner. The Pioneer Corps of the IXth Assembly District and a delegation from the Kansas City Blaine Club came in time to go with the crowd, which numbered about 800 by this time. At 2 o'clock the Sloan swang out into the stream, followed closely by the Pulver and a number of other boats, having on board friends of Mr Blaine. The fleet, which was widely scattered at times, included the Police boat Patrol, under Captain Smith, with Commissioner McClave and a party of friends on board, the Argus, the F. W. Vosburgh, C. R. Stone, W. H. Vanderbilt, Thomas L. Hunt, Mary Lewis, Rora, Lyndhurst, Titan, Hazel Kirke, and several other yachts, sailboats and steamers.

PROCEEDING DOWN THE BAY.

PROCEEDING DOWN THE BAY. The Sloan proceeded at once to Quarantine, with Mr. Rice's little steam cutter Daisy leading the way. On making fast to the Health Officer's pier Chairman Pool, of the Reception Committee, and President Bartlett went ashore to the telegraph office. They were met by Dr. Smith, who seemed to think that Mrr Blaine's arrival before to-day was rather unlikely. It was arranged, however, that the Sloan should cruss around the however, that the Sloan should cruise around the Narrows, and as soon as word came from Fire Island that the City of New-York had been sighted a signal would be displayed by the Health Officer. Again the boat put out to sea. The heat of the morning had modified greatly. A cool breeze sprang up. Heavy clouds hid the suif, making the sail about the Bay agreeable to all. All along the Staten Island hills crowds were gathered, watching through powerful glasses for the eagerly awaited vessel. Dozens of saucy little sail boats and sturdy tugs, with flags flying, cruised around the Sloan, ready to start with her down the Bay as soon as the word came to go. One would have supposed from the general appearance of everything that it was a National holiday.

MATERIAL ENOUGH FOR A CONVENTION.

MATERIAL ENOUGH FOR A CONVENTION. Time passed quickly on the Sloan. It was an interesting company. As General Husted remarked, "We have got all the material here for a National Convention. Yes," he added with a smile, looking in the direction of a group of states-men, "there is lots of Presidential timber here,

men. "there is lots of Presidential timber here, too."

"Yes," added another member of the Legislature, "the bitterest opponent of Mr. Blaine must admit that he is being welcomed home by a gathering that fairly represents every element of the Republican party. Every section of the country, East, West, North and South, has delegates here. Nothing indeed could be more factioniess than this company. This, to my mind, is not only a high tribute to Mr. Blaine, but it also shows that we are united for the contest this fall as never before."

Nearly every prominent member of the Republican Club was on board. They were disappointed of course at the result of the search, but marly all declared that they would go down again this morning and stay down the Bay another day if necessary.

WATCHING THE HEALTH OFFICER'S FLAG.

The Sloan went down the Bay as far as Hoffman Some of the guests wanted to go to Sandy Hook, but the Committee thought it best to keep within sight of the Health Officer's flagstaff. Two hours or more were spent in sailing about in sight of Bath Beach and Coney Island and then another call was made on Dr. Smith. Half a dozen steamboats were waiting then. No word had been received from the steamer. The more hopeful members of the company began to think that they were waiting in vain. Still the best of spirits prevailed. Cappa's band struck up a lively air.

"Let us have a parade now," shouted Mr. Johnson, of Maryland. It was formed at once, Everybody joined in the procession, which was led by the band. The enthusiasm of the crowd increased. It was suggested that all should go ashore and hold a mass-meeting. The motion was unanimously adopted, and in ten minutes the steamer was almost deserted.

The meeting lasted nearly two hours. Mr.

The meeting lasted nearly two hours. Mr. Pool and President Bartlett waited in the telegraph room near the pier until 8 o'clock. No news of the ship having arrived then, they decided to return to the city. On the way back the committee announced that the Sloan would start down the Bay again this morning at 7 o'clock sharp.

The two Custem House inspectors, O'Connell and McCoy, who went down on the Sloan yesterday said they only intended to examine Mr. Blaine's personal baggage. His family would go on to the pier and be landed there. The Sloan arrived at the pier about 9 o'clock.

A MASS-MEETING AT CLIFTON, S. I. IMPROMPTU PARADE AND SPEECHES BY EX-DISTRICT-ATTORNEY TENNEY, MURAT HAL-STEAD, A. L. MORRISON, J. P. FOSTER AND

The deck of the steamer proved too small for the spirit and mirth and enthusiasm that had been engendered by the lively and patriotic music dispensed by the band. A motion to go on shore met with prompt acceptance. When the Quarantine pier was reached there was a demand for speeches, and the names of Husted, Tenney, Halstead were shouted lustily. But the orators were coy, and the crowd after being cooped up several hours wished to stretch its legs. So an impromptu parade was organzed under the leadershp of Colonel

W. W. Johnson, of the Maryland delegation. It was not realized that there had been so many people on board the boat until the procession was formed in files of four deep. It made a long line. The utmost good humor prevailed. From far and near the people had come with the expectation of seeing James G. Blaine. They had been disappointed. But American-like they were disposed to make the best of the situation and at least get some fun out of it. With the band playing merrily in front they marched up the hill from the Quarantine pier and then turned down the main street that led through the ordinarily quiet and peaceful village of Clifton. It was a spectacle to which the inhabitants were unaccustomed, and they flocked out of doors to make the most of it. One young lady won for herself round after round of applause by waving the star-spangled" banner as the procession went by.

"That looks better than a red bandanna" - "She's the right kind of a girl"-" You bet, that's better worth fighting under than an old red wipe"-were the comments that mingled with the applause.

CHEERING FOR THE CANDIDATES. For about a mile the procession marched through the village, cheering frequently for Blaine and Harrison and Morwhile the musicians took breath for ton. another piece. The old refrain to which so many thousands marched enthusiastically at the last election was heard again; "Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine." And the result showed that it hadn't lost its charm.

After a brief halt, back through the dusty street, but with spirits as sprightly as ever, marched the procession. At the foot of the hill ranks were broken. Somebody had procured an open carriage which had accompanied the pro-With a happy inspiration Colonel Johnson decided to utilize this as a speaking-stand.

The horses were docile enough to stand an carthquake without bolting, for they were of the Staten Island breed. Robert P. Porter, Editor of "The Press," was made chairman, and proved fully equal to the emergencies of the occasion. In quick order he had an enthusiastic open-air meeting in full swing. Each speaker stood up on the barouche. Ex-United States District-Attorney A. W. Tenney was first summoned from the throng, which quickly made way for his burly figure. He received a greeting warm enough to put any speaker in a good humor. These are some of the things he said:

I am not going to make a prolonged speech. We are aiting to see the man we love. (Three cheers for James G. Elaine.) We are going to pay him our personal tributes of esteem and respect. We do it first as individuals and as citizens; we do it secondly because he is a typical American. (Applause.) We do it thirdly because he is admittedly the champion of that great doctrine of our party, protection to American industries. (Applause.)

ALL HARRISON AND MORTON MEN, TOO. ALL HARRISON AND MORTON MEN, TOO.

We also love that man from Indiana, General Harrison. (Great applause.) We are Blaine men from New-York, Chicago, Minneapolis and all over the country, but we are all going to pull tegether for Harrison and Morton. (Applause.) As we pledged our illegiance to Blaine, we now pledge our allegiance to Harrison and Morton. (Applause.)

We may soon be able to tell Mr. Blaine that we are ut of the woods. The Republican party, my brothers, vas nover so united as to-day—hever so determined, lever so capable of rallying to the support of the inerests of American labor and American industries.
Applause.)

(Appiause.)

The less Democrat we ever had said in 1860:

There are only two parties in this country, patriots and traitors. Now, in this year of grace, 1888, there are but two parties, Protectionists and Free Traders. (Appliause.)

"There are only two parties and traiters." Now, in this year of grace, 1888, there are but two parties, Protectionists and Free Traders. (Applause.)

I am now going to call on a Southerner—a friend of Blaine and a friend of Harrison—to make a speech. I call for Adam King, of Baltimore. (Applause.)

Mr. King didn't turn up and a committee was appointed to seek him. Mr. Porter then asked William Henry Harrison Miller, of Indiana, a former law partner of General Harrison, to make a speech. The mention of the name started three ringing cheers for Harrison, which were followed by three cheers for Mr. Miller. Mr. Miller spoke as follows:

I thank you none the less for your kindly greeting because I know that it is extended rather to General Harrison than to myself. I suppose that the gentleman who called upon me did so because he thought that nobody could be associated with General Harrison intimately for fifteen years without absorbing some of his good qualities. (Applause.)

Gentlemen, we have come here to-day, some of us, from a long distance, to show our appreciation of the fact that it is not possible for the Republican party to do too great honor to James G. Blaine. (Applause.) We feel in Indiana that in honoring this great man the Republican party honors itself. (Applause.) We know that it has happened more than once in the history of the country that a man has become President what no man can ever fill the office of President unless he has been provided by his Creator with endowments far beyond those which are vouchsafed to the ordinary man. (Applause.) And we know that whatever may betide the man whom we are here to honor to-day his kin and his friends may aways carry with them the proud consciousness that he has those high qualifications which fit him to fill, with honor to himself and with satisfaction to his countrymen, the highest office in the known world. (Loud applause.)

MR. HALSTEAD CALLED FOR. Calls now went up for Murat Halstead in tones of that would not brook denial. The handsome Editor of "The Commercial Gazette" was pushed forward and mounted the carriage, and then had to keep silent a minute until the cheering had subsided. This is what he said in substance:

sided. This is what he said in substance:

Fellow Citizons—I did not expect to be placed in this position, but I appreciate your kindness. I came from some thousand miles west of here with the purpose of joining you in paying my respects to the man whose face and form we are so eager to see. (Applause.) I think that we have auspiciously begun the great Presidential campaign this year. I have known General Harrison (applause) well for forty years. I sat down next to him in a schoolhoure in itamilton County, Chio, forty years ago, if was then a young man, serious beyond his years and admirable in every point of character, (applause, manifolded in every point of character, (applause, manifolded the Harrison sanything but honor. (Applause). He has always been a tower of strength in the doubtini and desperately contested strength in the doubtini and desperately contested state of Indiana. No mistake was made in his nomination. (Applause.) He has made many speeches, but no mistakes. (Applause.) There is no better friend of James G. Biaine in the West than Benjamin Harrison. (Applause.)

but no mistakes. (Applause.) There is no better friend of James G. Blaine in the West than Benjamin flartson. (Applause.)

For one, I'm glad that the nomination made at Chicago was in no sense an actology for the campaign of 1884—a campaign characterized by the sphender of the genius of James G. Blaine (applause), and which I believe was fairly won. (Applause, and a voice "They counted him out here.") You need not be troubled about the West and the Northwest in this campaign. You will hear the right music from that quarter (applause), and from what I know of the drift of public opinion in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, I believe that we shall win. (Applause.)

Jir. Blaine has seen in England the extraordinary sympathy that has been avowed between the Tory Salisbury Administration and the Cleveland Administration. It is one of the most remarkable things in the history of the two countries. The English newspapers, ever since the nomination of Harrison, have been most malignantly abusive of Mr. Blaine. They knew that he stood for the typical American clifteen. (Applause.) They knew that he held to the great doctrine that has put the United States far above the old colonial system that England once imposed upon us. (Applause.) Mr. Blaine brings with him reedy ammunition. You will hear the sound of the busile brign in earnest. (Applause.)

HOW WOULD CLEVELAND BE RECEIVED. Judge A. L. Morrison, of Arizona, was the next speaker. He had been paying particular attention to the Irish vote and what he said about it was exceedingly gratifying. These are some of the points he made:

points he made:

I have just been thinking that if Grover Cleveland had been defeated four years ago and was coming back from Europe, how many people would come this far to meet him? (Applause and haughter.) You need not trouble about the West New-York is the battleground, and upon the people of the State of New-York rests a solymn responsibility. But I believe it will prove equal to the trust. I have been doing my level best in this city for a year to help you. During that time I have associated mainly with my own countrymen—Irishmen. Harrison will receive twice as many Irish votes as Blaine did four years ago. I have not met one single Irish Democrat who voted for Blaine who will not vote for Harrison. (Apphause.) And I know of hundreds of Irishmen who voted for Cleveland at the last election who will vote for Harrison this time (applause.) because they know the bighting effect of English free trade in their own land. After meeting Mr. Blaine you can return to your homes and tell your people that America is not yet prepared for British free trade, and that the State of New-York will rise in her majesty and rebule John Bull and Grover Cleveland and all those who dare to threaten us with the pauper wages of Europa. (Appause.)

James P. Fester, president of the Republican

James P. Fester, president of the Republican National League, next made a brief speech, which awakened much enthusiasm. He spoke of the qualifications of Benjamin Harrison as a statesman, scholar, gentleman and soldier, and predicted that with "the foremost statesman of our country" as its leader, the Republican party would certainly carry the State of New-York.

THEY COULD NOT HAVE GONE ANYWAY. THE ROBERT GARRETT BREAKS DOWN, LOADER WITH REPUBLICAN LEAGUE MEMBERS.

About seven hundred Republicans, comprising delegations from Kansas City, Chicago, Washington, Virginia, Pennsylvania and other portions of the Union, assembled about noon yesterday on board the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company's ferrybeat Robert Garrett. The steamer had been chartered by Mr. Foster on behalf of the Republican League, and prominent among those on board Kansas City; Frank Aldrich, Washington; R. C. Fuller, Brooklyn; H. E. Sumney, Drifton, Penn.; W. H. Bridgens, Kansas City; B. M. Davidson, final order of the Grand Marshal; Virginia; C. C. Hausler, Kansas City; Benjamin T. Lynch, Ross Hanna, H. B. Craig, Minneapolis; B. Donohue, Yonkers Club, Dr. J. B. Mattison, James Redheffer and F. Hart. At one time in the morning there was a large muster of delegates on board, but it being ascertained that the City of New-York had not yet been sighted and that the Carrett was not likely to leave her dock before half-past 2 in the afternoon, there was a pretty general exodus. Many of those who thus departed failed to turn up again at the appointed time, with the result that when the boat at length made a start the total of the morning's muster had been depleted by nearly two-thirds.

The Robert Garrett had just cleared the dock

The Robert Garreit had just cleared the dock and made the tarn into the river when a grating noise was heard followed by a vibration that made itself felt in every part of the vessel. Steam was promply shut off and the hoat stopped. "Something wrong" was the whisper that liew around the vessel. What was the matter? What was going to be done. The period of questioning was soon ended when a couple of tugs came along-side and began towing the Garrett back to her slip. Dismay was depicted on the face of the passengers as the truth burst upon them. A few moments more and the chief engineer of the company had sprung on board and was down in the engine-room, closely examining one of the paddle wheels. Presently he reappeared. His report was given with cold-blocded brevity that chilled every heart. By some means a small log of wood had become jammed between two of the buckets of the wheel. Both buckets were broken and the Robert Garrett was completely disabled. The ardent Republicans on board could take no part in the reception.

The passengers demanded the return of their money. The captain declared it was no fault of his. Checks were distributed, however, which will entitle them to the return of their money. The charge for the taip was at the rate of $2 a head.

WORDS OF GREETING FROM IRISHMEN. ONE OF THE SPEECHES MR. BLAINE WILL HEAR -LOOKING FOR THE PARADE.

John Devoy, Joseph P. Ryan, Michael Breslin, Thomas A. Fencer, David J. Naughton, John F. Gibson, Captain M. J. Slattery, of Albany, Thomas Flynn, of Brooklyn, and about one hundred others representing the Irish-American Anti-Cleveland and Protective League, had a boat of their own, the Fred D. Dalzell, which they boarded at Pier 21, North River, and steamed down the Bay at 11 o'clock. The following address, which it was intended to read had Mr. Blaine arrived, will be presented to-day by John Devoy:

will be presented to-day by John Devoy:

On behalf of many thousands of Irish-American citizens we bid you a hearty welcome. Firm believers in the American dectrine of protection, we hall your return at this most important crisis in the life of the Nation as an augury of victory next November. The issue is between the principles which have brought happiness and prosperity to this country and those which have wrought have and ruin in the land from which our race has come. Shall the career of progress on which the Republic has been marching for a generation be continued with an ever-widening ing for a generation be continued with an ever-widening field for development, or shall that career be arrested and the seeds of infustrial decay be sown by a policy of retrogression? Is America to remain the one country on earth where the lot of the workingman is tolerable and he may where the lot of the workingman is to be decided look with confidence to the future, or are we to go back look with confidence to the future, or are we to go back look with confidence to the future, or are we to go back to the European system which breeds pauperism, misery and degredation? These are the questions to be decided next November, and on you much of the burden local test of the struggle will rest. We Irish-Americans to be decided the struggle will rest. We Irish-Americans to be decided next November, and on you much of the burden local test of the eause of American industrial progress, who fought under your hanner in 1884 are again restly to do battle for the cause of American industrial progress. CROWDS IN SUSPENSE AT THE HOTELS. NOT CAST DOWN AT ALL BY THE FAILURE OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK TO ARRIVE WHEN

The corridors of all the great hotels uptown were crowded last evening with men hailing from nearly every State in the Union. From below Twenty-third-st., and reaching for ten blocks northward, the sidewalks were lined with people on both sides of Broadway. Blaine badges by the hundred glistened under the electric lights of Madison Square. They clustered about the Worth Monument, they encircled the newly-erected reviewing stand, and were numerous about the Gilsey, the Victoria, the St. James, the Bruns wick, the Sturtevant, and the Republican Headquarters. They even filled the Hoffman House corridors and cafe, and made the Democratic guests feel small and few. But, the centre of attraction was the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and all the evening and until long after bed-time, a mass of expectant citizens stood in front, around, opposite and on all sides of it, as though impressed with the belief that some how or other James G. Blaine would come up from Quarantine and land at the New-York resting place. The rain which fell copiously did not move them away. These who had umbrellas raised them. Those who had none looked for nearby shelter. They did not

News from Fire Island, from Quarantine and from any part of New-York Bay was eagerly sought for. "Anything from Blaine yet?" City of New-York been sighted yet?" "Is there no word yet of Blaine?" "What is the latest dieted that that State would give the Republican from Quarantine?" "Have no signals been seen yet at Fire Island?" "Don't you think he will ome to-night?" " If the New-York reaches Quaring the Sam Sloan was complaining bitterly of being descried. So the crowd returned to her to antine to-night, won't Blaine come right up?" "Where can James G, be, anyway?" and scores of questions of like import were heard on every

The feeling of disappointment that the great steamship which, it was asserted on the authority of the agents, was to make the trip positively inof the agents, was to make the trip positively inside of six days, had failed in the contract, was apparent on all sides. Nearly everybody—all except those thoroughly versed in the movements of new ocean racers—had calculated that Blaine would certainly arrive before nightfall. The people did not give vent to their disappointment, however. They took it philosephically, in the American fashion. Moving about in the great crowd many well-known faces were to be seen. Some of them had been down the Bay on the Sam Slean and had come back tired, but not dispirited by any means, and the brilliant badges, on which the face and name of the foremost Republican leader appeared, were seen on every hand, fresh and fair as when first pinned on in the morning, reflecting the undimmed zest with which the leader himself was looked for.

The head of column, consisting of the Grand Marshal and staff, band and platoon of mounted police, will form in Fifth-ave, at and below Fifty-ninth-st, at 7:30 p. m., August 9.

The parading column will march down Fifth-ave.
At Twenty fourth-it., the honors of a marching salute will be paid to the Hon. James G. Blaine, who will review the column from the grand stand erected at The Republican Club of the City of New-York will form in Fifth-ave., right resting at Fifty-ninth-st., and will immediately follow the Grand Marshal and staff, and at the revewing stand, will form on the east side of Fifth-ave., and there remain throughout the parade as a "guard of honor."

The organizations participating in the parade will form in the streets east and west from Fifth-ave., the right of divisions resting on Fifth-ave. So soon as the right of each division is uncovered by the marching column, it will wheel into Fifth-ave, and follow at division distance.

On reaching Twenty-third-st., divisions will, as rapidly as possible, close to half distance on head of division, without reduction of step, by the heads of divisions; and will preserve the division organization to such points in Fifth-ave. as shall be named to division marshals, in "Division Orders," but no division will break its form north of Fourteenth-st. PREPARATIONS AT BLAINE'S HOME. Augusta, Me., Aug. 8 (Special).-The committee of the reception of Mr. Blaine at his home is at work, and it is expected that the affair will be one in which the tude, both as regards the number of people in attendance and the variety and extensiveness of the demonstration. Thousands of citizens from various sections will be present. Returns are rapidly coming in from the various clubs and organizations which will be here. Newport and Corinna will send a club of 100 and a bend; Richmond, a club and drum corps; Portland, the Harrison Guards and Portland Club; Bangor, the Loyal League and the Tippecanoe Club; Bath, a giec club; Brunswick, a club; Lewiston, one and possibly two clubs; Gardiner and Hallowell will also be represented by clubs and a large delegation, as well as many other places in the State. Augusta's Harrison Guards will be a large organization handsomely uniformed. A stand for the speakers has been erected in Mr. Blaine's front yard and the locality will fairly blaze with electric lights. To-day the grand arch of welcome is

A FORTUMATE WOMAN. Mrs. J. H. Gles. of Everett, Pa., says: I suffered for many years from Kidrey and Gravel trouble. The pains from the gravel were simply awful. Besides I had ether complaints common to my sex. No physicians 17 medicines at home did me any good. I finally visited my former home in Rondout, N. Y., and began using Dr. David Kennedy's Paverite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y. A few words tell the result. I am a happy and petfectly well woman once more. Thanks to Dr. Kennedy and his Favorite Remedy.
